

St Elizabeths East

HISTORY

A photograph of a red brick building, likely a school or institutional structure, showing significant signs of neglect and overgrowth. The building features a prominent metal fire escape on its side. The facade is heavily covered in dense, tangled vines and bare tree branches, particularly on the left side. A large, slender tree trunk stands in the foreground, partially obscuring the view of the building. The ground in the foreground is overgrown with weeds and grass. The overall scene suggests a long-abandoned or poorly maintained site.
