

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
HISTORIC PRESERVATION OFFICE

DESIGNATION

New Designation X

Amendment of a previous designation

Please summarize any amendment(s) _____

Property name Furies Collective

If any part of the interior is being nominated, it must be specifically identified and described in the narrative statements.

Address 219 11th Street SE

Square and lot number(s) 0969 0066

Affected Advisory Neighborhood Commission 6B

Date of construction 1913 Date of major alteration(s) 1920, 2004

Architect(s) Nicholas Haller

Architectural style(s) Eclectic

Original use residential

Property owner Robert S Pohl

Legal address of property owner 219 11th St SE

NAME OF APPLICANT(S) (1) DC Preservation League/ (2) Robert M Pohl

If the applicant is an organization, it must submit evidence that among its purposes is the promotion of historic preservation in the District of Columbia. A copy of its charter, articles of incorporation, or by-laws, setting forth such purpose, will satisfy this requirement.

1 Address/Telephone of applicant(s) 1221 Connecticut Ave., NW, WDC 20036, 202.783.5144

Name and title of authorized representative Rebecca Miller, Executive Director

Signature of representative [Signature] Date 7/14/2015

2 Address/Telephone of applicant(s) 219 11th St SE, WDC 20003,

Name and title of authorized representative Robert S Pohl (202) 997 3475

Signature of representative [Signature] Date 7/1/2015

Name and telephone of author of application Mark W Meinke (202)821 7532

Date received 7/17/2015
H.P.O. staff [Signature]
#15-18

United States Department of the Interior
National Park Service

National Register of Historic Places Registration Form

This form is for use in nominating or requesting determinations for individual properties and districts. See instructions in National Register Bulletin, How to Complete the National Register of Historic Places Registration Form. If any item does not apply to the property being documented, enter "N/A" for "not applicable." For functions, architectural classification, materials, and areas of significance, enter only categories and subcategories from the instructions.

1. Name of Property

Historic name: The Furies Collective

Other names/site number: _____

Name of related multiple property listing: _____

(Enter "N/A" if property is not part of a multiple property listing)

2. Location

Street & number: 219 11th St. SE

City or town: Washington State: DC County: n/a

Not For Publication: Vicinity:

3. State/Federal Agency Certification

As the designated authority under the National Historic Preservation Act, as amended,

I hereby certify that this ___ nomination ___ request for determination of eligibility meets the documentation standards for registering properties in the National Register of Historic Places and meets the procedural and professional requirements set forth in 36 CFR Part 60.

In my opinion, the property ___ meets ___ does not meet the National Register Criteria. I recommend that this property be considered significant at the following level(s) of significance:

___ national ___ statewide ___ local

Applicable National Register Criteria:

___A ___B ___C ___D

_____ Signature of certifying official/Title:	_____ Date
_____ State or Federal agency/bureau or Tribal Government

In my opinion, the property ___ meets ___ does not meet the National Register criteria.
_____ Signature of commenting official:	_____ Date
_____ Title :
_____ State or Federal agency/bureau or Tribal Government

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

4. National Park Service Certification

I hereby certify that this property is:

- entered in the National Register
- determined eligible for the National Register
- determined not eligible for the National Register
- removed from the National Register
- other (explain:) _____

Signature of the Keeper

Date of Action

5. Classification

Ownership of Property

(Check as many boxes as apply.)

- Private:
- Public – Local
- Public – State
- Public – Federal

Category of Property

(Check only one box.)

- Building(s)
- District
- Site
- Structure
- Object

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Number of Resources within Property

(Do not include previously listed resources in the count)

Contributing	Noncontributing
219 11th Street SE	_____	buildings
_____	_____	sites
_____	garage	structures
_____	_____	objects
_____	_____	Total

Number of contributing resources previously listed in the National Register _____

6. Function or Use

Historic Functions

(Enter categories from instructions.)

DOMESTIC
Rowhouse

Current Functions

(Enter categories from instructions.)

DOMESTIC
Rowhouse

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

7. Description

Architectural Classification

(Enter categories from instructions.)

Early Twentieth Century

Eclectic

Materials: (enter categories from instructions.)

Principal exterior materials of the property: Brick, Concrete, Wood

Narrative Description

(Describe the historic and current physical appearance and condition of the property. Describe contributing and noncontributing resources if applicable. Begin with a summary paragraph that briefly describes the general characteristics of the property, such as its location, type, style, method of construction, setting, size, and significant features. Indicate whether the property has historic integrity.)

Summary Paragraph

The two story rowhouse at 219 11th Street SE is an early twentieth century structure of no predominant style, though showing traits of Wardman style design. It sits on a lot of less than one acre provides 1,740 square feet of living space. The building was constructed in the summer of 1913 and is part of a residential block in the Capitol Hill Historic District, to which it is a contributing element.

The building exterior is virtually unchanged in appearance and layout since the period of its historical significance as the location of The Furies collective's working center.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Narrative Description

The two story rowhouse at 219 11th Street SE, site of The Furies collective, occupies lot 66 of square 969 on Capitol Hill. Lots 66 and 65 were divided out of the original lot 16 of square 969. The house is south by southwest of Lincoln Park, the fifth house down on the west side of 11th Street SE from Independence Avenue SE. The next street to the south is C Street SE. Adjacent to the house, on lot 65, at 217 11th Street SE is a contemporaneous structure of nearly identical style. The two lots had been purchased by William Murphy in November 1912.

Both houses were designed and built in the summer of 1913 by architect Nicholas T. Haller and completed by the end of August 1913. The house at 219 11th Street SE was designed as a two story brick house with a concrete basement and a metal roof. The house was wired for electricity and plumbed for gas lighting with hot water radiator heating. The face of the building was two feet behind the property line and used a Wardman flat-front style with a wide porch. Three colonial style white columns support the porch roof and frame the entrance to the house. Haller did not follow any predominant style in designing the house, which may best be described as early twentieth century eclectic. Though the front of the house shows a Wardman style, the house lacks the false third floor typical of Wardman.

At the roof line there is a simple dentition carried across the façade of the building. The lintels above the three second floor windows and above the front door and two first floor windows extend only briefly beyond the openings that they define, rather than continuously across the façade. Above the second floor lintels a raised wooden feature the same width as the roofline dentition bridges the space between the dentition and the lintels.

The original porch and front stairs, of bricks and wood, were replaced by owner Jean Perrie in 1921 with concrete. The work was performed by Charles William Cooksey.

The house has a total of ten rooms. In 2007 the current owners, Robert Pohl and Antonia Herzog, altered the back wall of the building by extending the kitchen area and installing a large window unit. The original metal roof has been replaced with a sealant amalgam and a new metal roof.

The house preserves all of the original woodwork, wood floors and moldings. Second floor transoms are intact and functional. The dining room wall adjacent to the hallway has been removed, opening the dining area to the hallway. The basement has been converted to a separate two bedroom garden apartment with its own entrance from the street.

On entering the house from the porch, one faces a wooden staircase to the second floor. To the right is the living room with original pocket doors to the hallway and to the dining room. The first floor bathroom is on the right of the hallway between the dining room and the kitchen. The kitchen gives on to an abbreviated back porch and stairs to the back patio.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

The stairs to the second floor land midway down the second floor hallway beneath a skylight. To the right is the master bedroom at the front of the house. Along the hallway, heading to the back of the house are a smaller bedroom, a full bath, and another bedroom overlooking the backyard and garage.

The house and its contemporary at 217 11th Street SE were built with an inset on the north side providing access to a door to the basement, to incoming wires and equipment boxes and providing light for windows set into the dining area.

Through conscientious maintenance and restoration, the building preserves the integrity of the site during the period of its significance. The building is intact and continues to be a residential building on a residential street, a contributing element in the Capitol Hill Historic District. The owners have preserved the key elements of Nicholas Haller's design of the residence in 1913. The interior preserves the woodwork, light fixtures and ceilings of the original design, including the hammered tin ceiling in the kitchen. The building conveys the sense of a residential unit such as it was when The Furies used it.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

8. Statement of Significance

Applicable National Register Criteria

(Mark "x" in one or more boxes for the criteria qualifying the property for National Register listing.)

- A. Property is associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history.
- B. Property is associated with the lives of persons significant in our past.
- C. Property embodies the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction or represents the work of a master, or possesses high artistic values, or represents a significant and distinguishable entity whose components lack individual distinction.
- D. Property has yielded, or is likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history.

Criteria Considerations

(Mark "x" in all the boxes that apply.)

- A. Owned by a religious institution or used for religious purposes
- B. Removed from its original location
- C. A birthplace or grave
- D. A cemetery
- E. A reconstructed building, object, or structure
- F. A commemorative property
- G. Less than 50 years old or achieving significance within the past 50 years

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Areas of Significance
(Enter categories from instructions.)

SOCIAL HISTORY

Period of Significance
1971 through 1973

Significant Dates
January 1, 1972

Significant Person
(Complete only if Criterion B is marked above.)

Cultural Affiliation

Architect/Builder

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph (Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance, applicable criteria, justification for the period of significance, and any applicable criteria considerations.)

CRITERION A

The Furies Collective house is directly connected with the early expression and definition of the character, role, and ideology of the lesbian community as a social and political community in itself, within the second wave women's movement, and within US society in general in the early 1970s. The Furies Collective through its national print materials and local services modeled the intents and challenges of lesbians through a separatist philosophy. The center of their activities as a collective and during the publication of the lesbian/feminist issue of the United Methodist youth magazine motive and of their newspaper The Furies between 1971 and 1973 was 219 11th Street Southeast, Washington, DC.

The house at 219 11th Street Southeast, Washington, DC became the operational center of the lesbian feminist separatist collective, The Furies, between late 1971 and the autumn of 1973 which created and led the debate over lesbians' place in society. The twelve women in the collective published a lesbian feminist edition of motive magazine and more importantly a tabloid size newspaper entitled The Furies which over a period of two years raised and discussed major questions of women's identity, women's relationships with other women, with men, and with society at large. That newspaper and its sister publication, the lesbian feminist issue of motive, set the issues and agenda of lesbian and feminist discussion for many years to come.

Over the course of the collective's and the newspaper's lives, the twelve women explored and sought to resolve a multitude of issues and examined their personal experiences in the lines of their newspaper. Their personal became political.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Narrative Statement of Significance (Provide at least one paragraph for each area of significance.)

INTENTIONS AND CONSEQUENCES

From the autumn of 1971 to the autumn of 1973, the modest row house at 219 11th Street SE in Washington, DC functioned as a national center of lesbian feminist separatism. The Furies collective and its newspaper, also named The Furies, firmly placed lesbian feminism within the women's movement and legitimized the needs and priorities of lesbians on a national scale. Though the programmatic accomplishments of the collective may seem limited, their ideological and intellectual roles in leading lesbianism and feminism as they defined themselves and confronted issues of sexism, male supremacy, economic difference and oppression, racism, and gender identity were significant and far-reaching.

Dr. Anne M. Valk has remarked that "... the group played a pivotal role in bringing attention to the lesbians' presence in the women's movement and legitimizing lesbian feminism as a political issue. Their notion that sexual identity was socially constructed rather than biologically determined and their understanding of the ways that enforced heterosexuality served male supremacy came to constitute central arguments of feminists. Finally by taking pride in their identities as lesbians and political women, their theory and action provided a powerful but problematic model for future activists."¹

Similarly, Dr. Rebecca Dolinsky in her analysis of lesbian and gay Washington DC between 1961 and 1986 affirms that "The Furies collective left an incredibly rich legacy with their newspapers, and their ideology heavily challenged the systems of capitalism and patriarchy with interesting and innovative ideas and practices."² Dr. Julie R. Enszer notes, in analyzing the role of poetry in the newspaper, that "The Furies envisioned possibilities for feminism in the world. There was anger about the systems of sexism and patriarchy that affected them as their name suggests, but there was also optimism and idealism. The women of The Furies saw themselves at the center of creating a new society."³

In late 1971, a collective of twelve lesbians, who had organized initially as Those Women changed their name to The Furies. They undertook to present a model of equality, self-reliance, and separate development to lesbians and feminists while defining the relationships of women to women, to society and economy, and to their own women's liberation movement. As a collective, the women raised issues

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

of male and heterosexual privilege, classism, women's dependency and the need for self-reliant self-determination, and insisted that lesbianism was more than an issue of sex, civil rights and culture. It was in fact the only option for a truly liberated woman.

Through their nationally distributed tabloid newspaper (intended for monthly publication, though not always achieving that), also named The Furies, the collective set the terms of debate over the ideology, strategies and tactics, and actual accomplishments of lesbian feminist separatism in the early years of newly militant gay and lesbian activism. The newspaper and the personal accomplishments of the twelve members of the collective proved instigating factors in the development of lesbian organizations, services, nonprofits, and companies over the following decades. Their first issue proclaimed,

"We believe The FURIES will make important contributions to the growing movement to destroy sexism. As a collective, in addition to outside projects, we are spending much time building an ideology which is the basis for action."⁴

CREATING THE LESBIAN FEMINIST SEPARATIST COLLECTIVE

The Furies collective emerged as the women's personal trajectories through the women's liberation movement, civil rights and antiwar activism, gay and lesbian activism, socialism and communism converged. Several future Furies had attempted earlier collectives. Women's liberation movement collectives and antiwar collectives had included several of the future Furies.

The Furies collective's members comprised:

- Ginny Berson
- Joan Biren
- Rita Mae Brown
- Charlotte Bunch
- Sharon Deevey
- Helaine Harris
- Susan Hathaway
- Nancy Myron
- Tasha Dellinger Peterson
- Coletta Reid
- Lee Schwing
- Jennifer Woodul

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

As member Ginny Berson described the members in the lead article of the first issue of the new newspaper in January 1972:

“We are a collective of twelve lesbians living and working in Washington, DC. We are rural and urban; from the Southwest, Midwest, South and Northeast. Our ages range from 18 to 28. We are high school drop-outs and Ph.D. candidates. We are lower class, middle and upper-middle class. We are white. Some of us have been lesbians for twelve years, others for ten months. We are committed to ending all oppressions by attacking their roots—male supremacy.”⁵

The Furies members were experienced collectivists, having participated in a number of feminist, antiwar, and lesbian feminist collectives before coming together in the summer of 1971. In 1970, Berson, Harris, Hathaway, and Peterson had been members of a feminist antiwar collective at 2900 18th Street NW in Washington, DC.⁶ Deevey and Biren, associates in the Washington Women’s Liberation Movement, had become lovers and with Charlotte Bunch (then Bunch-Weeks) had been members of the Daughters of Lilith, a feminist collective also associated with the Institute for Policy Studies where Bunch was one of two female Fellows.

The first attempt at an all-lesbian collective, hopefully named Amazing Grace, gathered Biren, Berson, Deevey, and Myron and four other lesbians from New York City for an experience which disintegrated over a variety of differences, including class, in the space of a week. In the spring of 1971, the Furies’ collective began taking shape in northwest DC, not far from the centers of women’s liberation and heterosexual feminism, in a house leased by Biren at 1861 California Street NW and also at the 2900 18th Street NW house.

The house on California Street NW was near a heterosexual feminist day care center whose members referred to the lesbians as “Those Women”, which the growing collective took as their initial name. Those Women included Berson, Biren, Bunch, Brown, Deevey, Hathaway, Peterson, Reid, and Schwing who over the summer used the California Street house for collective activities as well as for community outreach, local and national. As part of the emerging collective’s outreach, Those Women offered training classes through their Women’s Skills Center at the California Street house. The classes, under the slogan “Teach Each Other, Teach Ourselves”, offered classes in English and in Spanish and included basic auto repairs, self-defense, and basic home repairs. The members teaching the classes were often only one step ahead of their students. Joan E. Biren recalls teaching herself electrical wiring skills ahead of her class. Lee Schwing taught self-defense at the California Street house and other locations around the city on behalf of the collective.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

By the autumn of 1971, Those Women were an established presence providing services to the feminist and lesbian communities in Washington, DC. The October 1971 bulletin of DC Women's Liberation lists collective members as contacts for specific services:

Nancy Myron – Lesbian Press
Sue Swing (Lee Schwing) – Lesbian Newspaper
Sharon Deevey – Lesbian Pamphlet Series
Ginny Berson – Sports
Charlotte Bunch -- Women's Skills Center
Rita Mae Brown – Women's Film Festival (at Pub 9, a leather bar on Capitol Hill)

The collective's letter to the bulletin, dated September 27, 1971, indicates that Charlotte Bunch, Sharon Deevey, and Lee Schwing were still at the 1861 California Street NW house, Nancy Myron was at the 2900 18th Street NW house, and Rita Mae Brown, Jennifer Woodul, and Ginny Berson had already moved to 217 12th Street SE on Capitol Hill, a block over from the house that The Furies collective would soon call their operations center at 11th Street SE.

The failure of Washington, DC's feminist printing collective Econocopy in 1970 initiated discussion, in which Nancy Myron was involved, of the need for a new feminist printing company in Washington, DC. Over the spring and summer of 1971, Those Women discussed the possibility of creating their own newspaper. Notes summarizing the discussion detail the anticipated needs of a publishing venture, including that "We think we would need about 10 – 12 people to set up the paper and put it out." The experience of several members on the feminist DC publication off our backs left the group leery of "a paper whose politics are unclear or on too many different levels." One of the avowed aims of the projected publication was "offering lesbianism as a positive alternative not something weird to be ashamed of." Apart from presenting lesbianism and separatism in a favorable light, those involved in the discussion already had a clear vision of the newspaper's content. They expected to include

"... poetry; photography; survival (for instance info. on motorcycle repair, running away, etc.); news page—what gay women are doing around the country; ideological articles including reprints; general articles about the facts of lesbian oppression; listings of gay collectives, organizations, publications, services; articles about women's sexuality."

The discussion summary included a detailed list of equipment and accessories that would be needed for such a project.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

FIRST PUBLICATION: THE LESBIAN/FEMINIST ISSUE OF MOTIVE

In the late spring of 1971, the collective, through Charlotte Bunch's connections with the United Methodist Church youth magazine motive (she had been an editor of a 1969 double issue on women's liberation), undertook to edit and publish a final issue of motive on lesbian feminism. Initially meant to be a joint project, printing in 1971, with other collectives in Atlanta and Nashville, in the end the creation, editing, and publication of the issue fell entirely on the Furies collective. An initial call for contributions went out nationwide with an initial due date for submissions of September 15, 1971 for a November/December publication date. The call was sent from the 2900 18th Street NW address in the names of Biren, Bunch, Deevey, and Reid.

Members Tasha Peterson, who had been a part of the off our backs collective, and Helaine Harris acquired the composition and layout skills to produce motive, skills which stood them and the collective in good stead when the collective began publishing The Furies. Helaine Harris recalls, "I was a good typist and had learned to typeset when working on the motive lesbian feminist issue. I typeset the Furies issues ... Tasha also had this skill from working on the motive issue."⁷ Editors of the groundbreaking lesbian feminist issue of motive were Joan E. Biren, Rita Mae Brown, Charlotte Bunch, and Coletta Reid. All of the future twelve Furies participated in creating the motive Lesbian Feminist issue. As the lead editorial (Figure 2) proclaimed:

"In the process of putting this issue together we built bonds with lesbians around the country ... In order for lesbians to complete the entire production we gained many new skills. Lesbians from several cities produced the design and layout ... Where things were needed, we did them ourselves. Lesbians who could never write articles before wrote. Lesbians who never typeset before learned composing. Women who never published a magazine before did it."

The Lesbian/Feminist issue presaged much of what would later appear in The Furies in 1972 and 1973. Those Women wrote in motive (Figure 5)

"Women are moving. We are moving out of passivity, out of the closets, we are moving toward control of our own lives and the overthrow of male supremacy. The aim of this magazine is to express this motion and to move you by sharing the ideas, experiences, and feelings of many lesbians. Today, lesbian/feminist politics are taking shape; our analysis is crystallizing and we are starting on the path to effective action ... We are political lesbians who wanted to create a magazine that would communicate our ideas to you."

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Of the sixteen articles and poems in the motive Lesbian/Feminist issue; five were written by future Furies and another three by contributors to The Furies.

The lesbian feminist issue did not meet its original 1971 deadline, coming out in 1972 as the final publication of the United Methodist Church's magazine (along with its twin, the Gay Liberation issue produced by DC's Skyline Faggots collective). The editors of the motive issue sent an apology to "Dear Patient? Pissed? Friends and Lovers" in May 1972 explaining that the lesbian feminist issue would be coming. "Keep watching for it – MOTIVE, like women everywhere, Is coming out ... sooner or later." Consequently, The Furies collective, with its own newspaper and its issue of motive appearing in 1972, had a doubly impressive publication and outreach year for a small lesbian feminist separatist collective.

THE FURIES' CAPITOL HILL CENTER

The move to Capitol Hill that occurred in the last months of 1971 brought The Furies to an area, along 7th and 8th Streets SE (known locally as Barracks Row because of the US Marine Corps barracks along it) that was already gay and lesbian friendly. Joanna's, at 430 8th Street SE, had offered local lesbians a gathering place since May 1968 and became the first LGBTQ business to offer a place for same sex dancing. Across 8th Street SE was the Pub 9 where Rita Mae Brown staged film nights. In mid-summer 1971, former staff of Joanna's and Johnnie's (across E Street from Joanna's) opened the Phase One at 525 8th Street SE, the second Capitol Hill bar for lesbians. Next to the Pub 9 was the gay dance club Plus One (where in 1968 gay men refused to scatter, ignoring a police raid). Along Pennsylvania Avenue SE was Mr. Henry's gay and lesbian friendly restaurant and the Liferaft (at 639 Pennsylvania Avenue SE) another gay male club. In 1973, Judy Winsett (who helped with publication of both motive and The Furies) and Leslie Reeves would create a jewelry shop and bookstore at 321 7th Street SE known as Lammas. In short, moving to Capitol Hill was a good move. In the last months of 1971, Those Women renamed themselves The Furies and moved to Capitol Hill.

The Furies rented 219 11th Street SE. The house was owned at the time by Jewell Johnson and Irene Clagett. There are reports that Clagett and Johnson rented to members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War between January and May 1971, ahead of April 1971 Mobilization.

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

The house provided adequate space for meetings and for the publication project, the creation of a national lesbian feminist separatist newspaper, The Furies. The basement provided space for working on graphics, layout, and composition of the newspaper. The house also provided space for collective meetings, consciousness raising sessions, and educational/training sessions. Nancy Myron, Tasha Peterson, and Susan Hathaway were the first residents at 219 11th Street SE. Over the coming year, Ginny Berson would move in (and out when she and singer Meg Christian became lovers), as would Lee Schwing and Helaine Harris.

Coletta Reid recalls

“11th Street had a big basement and we were able to move in all the equipment we needed to publish a newspaper including building layout tables. 11th Street also had a bigger living room and dining room so we held most of our meetings there. I remember our holding theory study groups there. I was in a history study group that also included Rita and Ginny. We read materials from the Russian and Chinese revolutions. I was also in a study group that read Frantz Fanon, Norman O. Brown and Herbert Marcuse.

The most important event there was the planning of each issue of the newspaper, the writing of the articles and the layout and distribution of the newspaper itself. Copies that were not sent out to individual subscribers and alternative bookstores were stored there for future distribution. The newspaper itself was the culmination of many meetings that were both consciousness-raising and attempts to come to agreement on a set of beliefs.”⁸

Helaine Harris recalls that “We kept the Furies mailing list on index cards and typed them onto labels that had carbon paper to duplicate,”⁹

Too large for only a single location, the collective also secured space in another Capitol Hill row house at 115 8th Street SE. That space housed Charlotte Bunch, Helaine Harris, Coletta Reid, and Lee Schwing. Rita Mae Brown and Jennifer Woodul lived at 217 12th Street SE, a block away.

THE FURIES* NEWSPAPER: CREATING & LIVING AN IDEOLOGY FOR LESBIAN SEPARATISM

The Furies collective had grand objectives, nothing less than working out an effective ideology for lesbians and feminists nationwide. The collective sought to apply to itself its standards of freedom from male supremacy, equality, self-reliance and independence while addressing issues of race and class oppression. The Furies sought to provide services to lesbians and feminists locally and nationally as the vanguard of a nationwide lesbian feminist movement.

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

The newspaper, when it appeared in January 1972 (Figure 6) was a blast of lesbian feminist ideology, introspection, and a call for women to pursue a separate destiny and life. Ginny Berson's opening article set the stage with an account of the ancient Furies, casting the stories of the Greek Furies in the framework of a battle against male supremacy and underscoring the modern American Furies' own anger:

"We call our paper The FURIES because we are also angry. We are angry because we are oppressed by male supremacy. We have been fucked over all our lives by a system which is based on the domination of men over women ... We are working to change this system which has kept us separate and powerless for so long."¹⁰

The first issue introduced the mix of ideology, critiques of heterosexual feminism and polemic, biographical essays, poetry, personal essays, advice on self-reliance, and accounts of life in the collective, many of which had been suggested in the 1971 discussions about creating a newspaper.

Personal essays detailed the lives of lesbian feminists and life in the collective. Ginny Berson's short article on "The Dentist" provided a sharp example of male attitude undermining women's relationships. Sharon Deevey's personal essay, "Such a Nice Girl..." detailed her personal journey to lesbian feminist separatism and forthrightly confessed her perception of her own shortcomings. Deevey and Joan Biren had already been cast out of the collective over issues of class privilege. Deevey wrote, "I know there is a lot I don't yet understand yet about class, and I have hardly begun to deal with race." Yet she celebrated her embrace of lesbianism consciousness, criticizing women who did not change. "If you, or I, choose not to change, we choose against a women's revolution and against ourselves."¹¹

The newspaper regularly presented advice on self-reliance or articles by member Lee Schwing on self-defense for women. The Furies first issue presented strengthening exercises for women. Later issues presented self-defense strategies.

In the first issue Charlotte Bunch's article "In Lesbians in Revolt" asserted the primacy of lesbian-feminist politics "as the basis for liberation of women," envisioning the assumption of power by resurgent lesbian feminist separatists. Rita Mae Brown provided a political critique of Roxanne Dunbar's The Movement and the Working Class and an essay on gossip. As in many future issues, the first provided a biography, by Helaine Harris, of an important lesbian feminist figure, Queen Christiana of Sweden. Susan Hathaway provided a critique of the Nixon economy. And throughout, the issue was illustrated by JEB (Joan E. Biren)'s and S. Myers' photographs and line drawings by Wendy Cadden and others. To

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

round out the issue, the first Furies included several of the popular Edward the Dyke poems by Judy Grahn.

Many of the long term contributors to the ten issues of the newspaper made their first appearance in issue one: Ginny Berson, Rita Mae Brown, Charlotte Bunch, Sharon Deevey, Susan Hathaway, and poet Judy Grahn. For the first two issues the credited Furies staff were Berson, Harris, Hathaway, Myron, Peterson, Schwing, and Woodull. The remaining Furies were recognized for helping to get the issue out. The third issue in March/April 1972 added Coletta Reid to the newspaper staff. Over time, those credited with each issue became fluid and, following the dissolution of the collective itself, drew in other lesbian feminists not associated with The Furies collective to edit and work on each issue.

The Furies collective, which had drawn together over the winter and spring of 1971, had by the summer of 1972 come apart. Originally conceived as the model for the ideology and strategies they would recommend to lesbian feminist comrades, the internal life of the collective became fraught with tensions over classist behaviors, personalities, age differences and personal ideologies. Those who were judged against by the collective lost their right to participate in collective decisions but nonetheless continued to work with the other collective members in the important publishing efforts of The Furies. Dolinsky notes that "The living collective was an emotional and trying experience for many of the members ... and the lessons of those difficulties leave a legacy as well."¹²

The first to leave were Biren and Deevey, who rather than moving to Capitol Hill remained in northwest DC when the others went across town. On March 6, 1972, the remaining Furies purged Rita Mae Brown as well. A month later the collective had ceased to be a collective.

Despite the tensions in the collective, The Furies continued as a newspaper and a sounding board for lesbian feminist issues for another year and those collective members remaining in the city continued to write, layout, compose, photograph, distribute, and support its publication.

Rita Mae Brown, a founder of New York's Radicalesbians and author of Rubyfruit Jungle, painted a particularly detailed picture of life in the collective in her 1976 work, A Plain Brown Rapper, dedicated to The Furies collective members. Life, as in many other collectives across the country, followed the peculiarly American version of a socialist cell model with a life lived in common, with spaces and clothing and possessions shared amongst the members.

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

“We lived together, shared chores equally. All clothing rested in a common room. We slept together in mattresses on the floor in the same room ... Within the collective we slaved at study groups. Each woman elected a major country and a minor country. We were to report the history of that country ... we shared a common feminist-socialist philosophy.”¹²

Brown identified what she saw as the issues that imploded the collective. “What we discovered, painfully, were the real walls that prevent effective political commitments between people.”¹³ She listed the issues, including lying to themselves about themselves, not recognizing that style is “as important as content, politically and individually”, and ignoring the psychology of class differences. She felt three years later that the latter failure and the issue of identity had undermined the collective.

Charlotte Bunch, writing on “Learning from Lesbian Separatism” in the November 1976 issue of MS, viewed the collective as showing “Our time as lesbian-feminist separatists was less a period of being ‘out’ of the Women’s Movement than of being profoundly ‘in’ the heart of its matter. It was a time that allowed us to develop both political insights and concrete projects that now aid women’s survival and strength.”¹⁴

Despite the dissolution of the collective, the staff’s dedication to The Furies newspaper did not flag. With its continuing production the paper drew more broadly on the national pool of lesbian feminist writers, poets, photographers, and graphic artists. Loretta Ulmschneider, Deborah George, Susan Baker, and Dolores Bargowski became more regular contributors. Production of lesbian feminism’s primary vehicle for national discussion was still considered a dedicated task in which those engaged were “members” of a campaign. Finally though dwindling numbers ended the newspaper. As the staff noted in the final issue (May/June 1973), “the paper cannot continue with only two members”.

Through the course of The Furies’ ten issues, perspectives on lesbianism and separatism shifted as lives shifted. The personal was still political and sexism, capitalism, and other oppressions were still foes at the end. By the May/June 1973 issue, the focus had shifted from absolute apartness from the male supremacist world to building institutions for feminists (Helaine Harris and Lee Schwing in “Building Feminist Institutions”). By the final issue (Figure 7), the newer voices of Ulmschneider and George cast a note of disagreement over the claims of Furies collective members Harris and Schwing that lesbian feminist institutions alone could win the day. Ulmschneider and George noted “the limitations of alternative institutions.”

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

Class issues, raised recurrently throughout the life of the newspaper, continued unresolved at the end. In her final comment, with the somewhat discouraging title of "Class Revisited: One Step Forward Two Steps Back", Ginny Berson insisted class was political and warned that "A feminist movement without class consciousness is going to leave a lot of women in bondage. If we are really concerned about the welfare of all women we had better start dealing with class."¹⁵ Charlotte Bunch, whose article "Perseverance Furthers: Separatism and Our Future" in the Fall 1972 issue reviewed the disarray and challenges in the women's liberation movement and suggested next steps toward a unified approach, defended her article in the final issue against the attacks of those who misinterpreted it as a retreat from separatism. Bunch took exception to the perception that she was arguing that lesbian feminists should work with men; rather she argued that the real issue was "what has separatism become within the women's movement and where is it taking us in the future?"¹⁶

As The Furies newspaper ceased, lesbian feminism continued with a more richly defined sense of itself and of lesbians' place within the women's movement. In the space of eighteen months, the efforts of the collective's twelve women had invigorated the debate over what lesbians needed to do and what they needed to oppose. Their argument for independent self-reliant women had become a norm for many lesbian feminists and even within the wider women's movement.

LINGERING EFFECTS

Rita Mae Brown, looking back at The Furies three years after the final issue wrote, "The test of our success is the collective members themselves."¹⁷ The twelve Furies all went on to create new feminist ventures and institutions. The Diana Press, one of the nation's first independent feminist publishers, began in Baltimore, moved to Oakland and grew out of the work of Coletta Reid and Nancy Myron. Ginny Berson and Jennifer Woodul helped to found Olivia Records, the first independent women's music production company, which later moved to California. Lee Schwing and Helaine Harris started one of the first feminist distribution companies for publications, Women in Distribution. Joan E. Biren created a feminist filmmaking and distribution company, Moonforce Media, and began creating visibility for lesbians with her images and publications. Charlotte Bunch and Rita Mae Brown helped found Quest: A Feminist Quarterly, which published 20 issues. Bunch became one of the leaders of the women's studies and the global women's human rights fields.

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

Across the country others emulated their models creating the first women's music festivals, film festivals, independent businesses, publishing ventures, and a wealth of newspapers, newsletters, and magazines. The first issue of The Furies carried ads for the Daughters of Bilitis' The Ladder, Ain't I A Woman and Rat. By the final issue in the summer of 1973, The Furies carried ads for Whole Woman (Madison WI), Libera (Berkeley, CA), Lavender Woman (Chicago, IL), Portcullis East/West (Los Angeles CA), Ain't I A Woman (Iowa City, IA), The Lesbian Tide (Los Angeles, CA), The Second Wave (Cambridge, MA), and of course motive-the lesbian feminist issue.

Equally indicative of The Furies achievements was their correspondence with lesbians worldwide—part of the heated reaction to articles such as Bunch's Fall 1972 review of separatism. The penultimate issue (March-April 1973, volume 2, number 2) included both a furious letter of criticism from Minneapolis's Radical Feminists collective and a discussion of lesbianism as a political choice written by the Purple September collective in Holland.

This wide distribution of The Furies publications and The Furies topical discussions underscores their central role in spurring, concentrating, and guiding discussion of what it means to be lesbian, feminist, and human. Among Diana Press's first, and most popular, publications were three collections of articles from The Furies: Women Remembered (1974), Class & Feminism (1974), and Lesbianism and the Women's Movement (1975), all edited by Charlotte Bunch and Nancy Myron. Anne Valk remarks at the end of her discussion of The Furies that

“... by taking pride in their identities as lesbians and political women, their theory and separatism, views on action provided a powerful but problematic model for future activists. Feminist groups in places as different as Durham, North Carolina and Dayton, Ohio subsequently credited the Furies with helping them to understand lesbianism as a political issue. Moreover, after they left their collective, former members devised new means to spread feminist theory and culture throughout the city and into mainstream America. In doing so, they built an infrastructure that supported the feminist movement and substantively broadened the movement's ideological foundations and the diversity of its adherents.”¹⁸

The issues and concerns raised in The Furies remain current today. New generations of feminists and lesbians continue to discover The Furies and their articles. Charlotte Bunch's article “Lesbians in Revolt” from the first issue of the newspaper continues in print in various anthologies of feminist and lesbian writing. Diana Press's three collections of articles from The Furies continued to be reprinted for many years.

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

In an example of things coming full circle, Charlotte Bunch received a November 2014 message from a young Dutch graduate student querying ideas in the newspaper and asking whether The Furies had been aware of the Purple September Dutch lesbian collective: “Were you aware, after the splitting up of the Furies, that you had copy cats in other countries? In other words, have you ever heard of Paarse (purple) September in the Netherlands?”¹⁹ In actual fact, the penultimate issue of The Furies included an article by the Purple September collective writing that “We reject the normative status of heterosexuality but not heterosexuality as one type of relationship, among others.”

The Furies challenged feminists, lesbians, and society to rethink their most basic assumptions. Alice Echols, in her 1989 survey of American feminism between 1967 and 1975, remarks that

“Lesbian-feminists like The Furies forced heterosexual feminists to acknowledge that sexuality is socially rather than biologically constructed, and to understand the centrality of institutionalized heterosexuality to women’s oppression. Feminists were forced to rethink their assumptions about lesbianism.”²⁰

Perhaps the last word should go to another member of The Furies, Coletta Reid, who summarized their legacy:

“The Furies should be remembered for developing a theory of lesbian-feminism – a primary catalyst for the formation of lesbian-feminist groups and collectives all across the nation. The members of The Furies brought to this theory the perspectives and understanding of various movements we had been involved in. Members had been active in the civil rights, anti-war/anti-imperialist, gay, women’s, and hippie movements. Through discussion, conflict and interaction, members were able to come to a holistic understanding of oppression which is now called intersectionality. We integrated the perspective from various movements into an anti-patriarchal vision with lesbianism at its core.”²¹

CONTINUING THE LESBIAN FEMINIST PRESENCE

The story of 219 11th Street SE’s role in feminism and lesbianism doesn’t end with The Furies. The house at 219 11th Street SE continued its identification with significant elements of Washington, DC’s lesbian feminist community. It was rented by Judy Winsett and Leslie Reeves at a rate of $200 per month after the Furies moved out. Winsett and Reeves had established themselves as makers of silver jewelry and opened a shop on the ground floor of 321 7th Street SE in 1973. The large basement room at 219 11th Street SE served as Winsett and Reeves’ jewelry-making studio. In fact the address was used in Winsett’s 1975 filing for Lammas’ trademark.

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

Lammas' 7th Street SE store opened in the summer of 1973, as The Furies wound down (the final issue carried an ad for the new location). An upstairs neighbor operated a book distribution service from the second floor of the building; her service eventually began stocking books in the new Lammas downstairs.

The character of Lammas changed over its first few years from a women's jewelry shop to a woman-focused bookshop and center for women's activities. Lammas Women's Shop became a feminist and lesbian bookstore and eventually a de facto lesbian community center. The business venture endured until finally closing in 2001 at its 17th Street NW location.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

ISSUES OF THE FURIES

Issue	Article	Author
January 1972	The Furies	Ginny Berson
Volume 1 number 1	Such a Nice Girl ...	Sharon Deevey
	Women: Weak or Strong	Lee Schwing
	The Dentist	Ginny Berson
	Roxanne Dunbar: How a Female Heterosexual Serves the Interests of Male Supremacy	Rita Mae Brown
	Edward the Dyke and Other Poems	Judy Grahn
	Lesbians in Revolt: Male Supremacy Quakes and Shivers	Charlotte Bunch
	Queen Christina: Lesbian Ruler of Sweden	Helaine Harris
	Gossip	Rita Mae Brown
	The Price is Wrong	Susan Hathaway
	What's Going On
	Photography	JEB (Joan E. Biren) & S. Myers
February 1972	After Monterey Pop – poem	June Slavin
Volume 1 number 2	Out of the O Zone	Helaine Harris
	Gimme Shelter	Tasha Peterson
	Keep Your Chin Up	Lee Schwing
	Much Madness in the Divinest Sense: Emily Dickinson	Jennifer Woodul
	No Place to Go	Ginny Berson
	Emotionalism—Downward Spiral	Sharon Deevey and Coletta Reid
	The Hand that Cradles the Rock	Rita Mae Brown
	Corporate Capitalist: Survival of the Fittest	Lee Schwing and Coletta Reid
	The Trojan Hoax	Charlotte Bunch
	Leadership vs. Stardom	Rita Mae Brown
	Photography & graphics	JEB (Joan E. Biren), Susan Baker, D George, Nancy Myron, Kathy Hopwood
March/April 1972	Class Beginnings	Nancy Myron
Volume 1, number 3	Jamie: A Short Story	Helaine Harris
	Lesbian Headache #69	Lee Schwing
	Ideology: Guide to Action	Coletta Reid
	That's Capitalism for You	Susan Hathaway
	Taking the Bullshit by the Horns	Barbry
	The Last Picture Show: A Review	Rita Mae Brown
	Slumming It in the Middle Class	Ginny Berson
	Dona Catalina	Charlotte Bunch
	Photography & graphics	JEB (Joan E. Biren), Nancy Myron, S Martin, S Baker, B. Cilden, e. Mae Huskey
May 1972	Revolution Begins at Home	Charlotte Bunch and Coletta Reid
Volume 1, number 4	A Well-placed Kick	Lee Schwing
	Cloning: A Recycling or an Answer to Copulation	Michela Griffin
	All I Want	Helaine Harris

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC

Name of Property

County and State

	An Anarchist Plebe Fights Back	Katz
	The Furies Response to Katz: Beyond Male Power	Ginny Berson for The Furies
	The Power and the Glory	Susan Hathaway
	Photographs & graphics	JEB (Joan E. Biren), Fran Welton, Nancy Myron, Leslie Conardo, Sunny
June/July 1972	Darers Go First	Jennifer Woodul
Volume 1, number 5	A New Book of Lesbian Poetry	Pat Parker
	Only by Association	Ginny Berson
	Details	Coletta Reid
	Recycled Trash	Coletta Reid
	Freest Fancy	Ginny Berson
	Come Outside (on a queer day you can see forever)	JEB (Joan E. Biren)
	Out Now!	Charlotte Bunch
	Out of the Sea of Discontent	Rita Mae Brown
	A Manifesto for the Feminist Artist	RMB
	Away with Your Man-Visions	Helaine Harris and Coletta Reid
	Photography and graphics	JEB (Joan E. Biren), Sharon Deevey, Wendy Cadden
August 1972	I was a Teenage Lesbian	Lee Schwing, Helaine Harris, Sissy Hopwood
Volume 1, number 6	They Killed Pricks	Susan Baker
	Garbage Among the Trash	Dolores Bargowski and Coletta Reid
	Should Have Known	Helaine Harris
	Just Like in the Saturday Evening Post	Nancy Myron
	Photography and graphics	Sharon Deevey, Mary Helen Mautner, Sissy Hopwood, D. English, Nancy Myron
Fall 1972	We're Doing It in Our Schools-poem	E. Sharon Gomillion
Volume 1, number 7	Editorial on Dissolution of the Collective
	Perseverance Furthers: Separatism & Our Future	Charlotte Bunch
	Internal Bleeding (or A Case Study In Bombastic Twaddling)	Nancy Myron
	Poems	Susan Baker, E. Sharon Gomillion, Merritt Wilson, Lee Lally
	It's Now or Never Baby	Susan Hathaway
	Fantasies of a Wheat Lady	Helaine Harris
	Women Who Love Men Hate Them: Male Supremacy vs. Sexism	Rita Mae Brown
	Photography and graphics	JEB (Joan E. Biren), D. Bargowski, Keegar, Sally Neibert
February 1973	To Our Readers
Volume 2, number 1	Perseverance Furthers: Woman's Sense of Self	Charlotte Bunch
	A Sonatina Followed by Another	Gertrude Stein, Fran Winant ed.
	Gertrude & Alice	Fran Winant & Loretta Ulmschneider, compilation
	She Who	Judy Grahn

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

	Sometimes There Are No Seasons	Helaine Harris
	Gay Reformism, Almost But Not Quite	Mary Helen Mautner
	Gay and Groovy	Helaine Harris
	Sister of Mine	E. Sharon Gomilion
	Photography and graphics	JEB (Joan E. Biren), Sharon Deevey, Marian, Nancy Myron
March-April 1973	Bisexuality	Loretta Ulmschneider,
Volume 2, number 2	Journeys on the Living - poems	Linda Koolish, Helaine Harris (intro)
	Eating Artichokes – poems	Willyce Kim, Helaine Harris (intro)
	Letter to The Furies	Radical Feminists
	Editorial	Lee Schwing and Deborah George
	Holland	Purple September
	New York Poems	Lee Lally
	Ladies Almanack	A Lady of Fashion
	Walking in the Midst of Others- One Returns Alone	Ginny Berson
	Photography and graphics	Amy Tan, Susan Baker, D. George, Nancy Myron, Kathy Hopwood, Catherine
May-June 1973	The Final Issue	The Furies Staff
Volume 2, number 3	Building Feminist Institutions	Lee Schwing, Helaine Harris
	Addendum to Building Feminist Institutions	Loretta Ulmschneider, Deborah George
	Unnatural woman	Dianne O'Flynn
	Oranges at Wandegeya	Jay Williams
	R Street	Keegar
	I Don't Want a Pickle	D. George
	Class Revisited: One Step Forward, Two Steps Back	Ginny Berson
	A Letter to the Staff	Charlotte Bunch
	Photography and graphics	JEB (Joan E. Biren), Sharon Deevey, Elyse, Charlotte Bunch, D. George

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

End Notes

¹ Valk, Anne M., Radical Sisters: Second Wave Feminism and Black Liberation in Washington, DC, Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 2010, page 153.

² Dolinsky, Rebecca, Lesbian and Gay DC: Identity, Emotion, and Experience in Washington, DC's Social and Activist Communities (1961-1986), Santa Cruz: University of Santa Cruz, 2010, unpublished dissertation, page 156.

³ Enszer, Julie, "Have Fun So We Do Not Go Mad in Male Supremacist Heterosexual Amerika: Lesbian Feminist Poetry in The Furies," Beltway Poetry Quarterly, Spring 2010, Volume 2, number 2, <http://washingtonart.com/beltway/Furies.html>.

⁴ The Furies, January 1972, Volume 1, number 1, page 1.

⁵ ibid.

⁶ Beemyn, Genny, A Queer Capital: A History of Gay Life in Washington, DC, New York: Routledge, 2015, p. 195.

⁷ Harris, Helaine, personal communication, December 30, 2014.

⁸ Reid, Coletta, personal communication, December 30, 2014.

⁹ Harris, Helaine, personal communication, December 30, 2014.

¹⁰ Brown, Rita Mae, A Plain Brown Rapper, Oakland: Diana Press, 1976, pp. 13-14.

¹¹ ibid., p. 15.

¹² Dolinsky, page 173.

¹³ Bunch, Charlotte, "Learning from Lesbian Separatism", MS Magazine, November 1976, p. 81.

¹⁴ The Furies, January 1972, volume 1, number 1, page 1.

¹⁵ ibid. page 2.

¹⁶ The Furies, May/June 1973, volume 2, number 3, page 2.

¹⁷ ibid. pages 8-9.

¹⁸ Brown, page 20.

¹⁹ Valk, page 153.

²⁰ Bunch, Charlotte, personal communication, February 15, 2015.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

²¹ Echols, Alice, Daring to Be Bad, Minneapolis: University of Minnesota Press, 1989, page 238.

²² Reid, Coletta, personal communication, December 30, 2014.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

9. Major Bibliographical References

Bibliography (Cite the books, articles, and other sources used in preparing this form.)

Published articles of The Furies:

- Myron, Nancy and Charlotte Bunch, eds., Lesbianism and the Women's Movement, Baltimore: Diana Press, 1975.
- Bunch, Charlotte and Nancy Myron, eds., Class and Feminism, Baltimore: Diana Press, 1974.
- Myron, Nancy and Charlotte Bunch, eds., Women Remembered, Baltimore: Diana Press, 1974.
- The Furies, Volumes 1 number 1 through Volume 2 number 3, Washington, DC: The Furies, Rainbow History Project, <http://www.rainbowhistory.org>.

Other Publications:

Beemyn, Genny, A Queer Capital: A History of Gay Life in Washington, DC, New York: Routledge, 2015.

Brown, Rita Mae, A Plain Brown Rapper, Oakland: Diana Press, 1976.

Brumfield, Dale, Independent Press in DC and Virginia: An Underground History, Mount Pleasant, SC: The History Press, 2015.

Bunch, Charlotte, Passionate Politics: Essays 1968-1986, New York: St. Martin's Press, 1987.

-----, "Learning from Lesbian Separatism", MS Magazine, November 1976.

Dolinsky, Rebecca, Lesbian and Gay DC: Identity, Emotion, and Experience in Washington, DC's Social and Activist Communities (1961-1986), Santa Cruz: University of California - Santa Cruz, 2010, unpublished dissertation.

Echols, Alice, Daring to Be Bad: Radical Feminism in America 1967-1975, Minneapolis: University of Minnesota Press, 1989.

Enszer, Julie R., "Have Fun So We Do Not Go Mad in Male Supremacist Heterosexual Amerika: Lesbian-Feminist Poetry in The Furies", Beltway Poetry Quarterly, Volume 11, number 2, 2010, <http://washingtonart.com/beltway/furies.html>.

-----, "I'll Settle for a Moment of Glory: Lesbian-Feminist Poetry in Washington, DC", Beltway Poetry Quarterly, Volume 15, number 4, 2014, <http://www.beltwaypoetry.com/lesbian-feminist/>.

Garber, Linda, "Lesbian Feminism", Lesbian Histories and Cultures: An Encyclopedia, New York: Taylor & Francis, 2012, pages 456-458.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Garrido, Anahi Russo, An Activists Life: A Companion Discussion Guide to the Film Passion: The Life and Work of Charlotte Bunch, New Brunswick, NJ: Center for Women's Global Leadership, Rutgers University, 2013.

Pohl, Robert, The History of 219 11th St. SE, Washington, DC, Washington DC: Publisher Parrish, 2007.

Valk, Anne M., Radical Sisters: Second Wave " and Black Liberation in Washington, DC, Urbana: University of Illinois Press, 2008.

_____, "Living a Feminist Lifestyle: The Intersection of Theory and Action in a Lesbian Feminist Collective", Feminist Studies, Volume 28 number 2, 2002.

Whitish, Jessica, "The Furies and Feminist Nuns: Separatism as Sexual Resistance in the Women's Liberation Movement", Louisville: University of Louisville, 2014, unpublished paper.

Previous documentation on file (NPS):

- preliminary determination of individual listing (36 CFR 67) has been requested
- previously listed in the National Register
- previously determined eligible by the National Register
- designated a National Historic Landmark
- recorded by Historic American Buildings Survey # _____
- recorded by Historic American Engineering Record # _____
- recorded by Historic American Landscape Survey # _____

Primary location of additional data:

- State Historic Preservation Office
- Other State agency
- Federal agency
- Local government
- University
- Other

Name of repository: Rainbow History Project, Washington, DC

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Historic Resources Survey Number (if assigned): _____

10. Geographical Data

Acreage of Property less than one acre

Use either the UTM system or latitude/longitude coordinates

Latitude/Longitude Coordinates (decimal degrees)

Datum if other than WGS84: _____

(enter coordinates to 6 decimal places)

- | | |
|--------------|------------|
| 1. Latitude: | Longitude: |
| 2. Latitude: | Longitude: |
| 3. Latitude: | Longitude: |
| 4. Latitude: | Longitude: |

Or

UTM References

Datum (indicated on USGS map):

NAD 1927 or NAD 1983

- | | | |
|---------------|--------------------|----------------------|
| 1. Zone: 18 S | Easting: 327238.68 | Northing: 4306122.53 |
| 2. Zone: | Easting: | Northing: |
| 3. Zone: | Easting: | Northing: |
| 4. Zone: | Easting : | Northing: |

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Verbal Boundary Description (Describe the boundaries of the property.)

Boundary Justification (Explain why the boundaries were selected.)

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

11. Form Prepared By

name/title: Mark W Meinke organization: Rainbow Heritage Network
street & number: 10702 Norman Avenue
city or town: Fairfax state: VA zip code: 22030
e-mail: mwmeinke@gmail.com
telephone: (202)8217532
date: June 30, 2015

Additional Documentation

Submit the following items with the completed form:

- Maps: A USGS map or equivalent (7.5 or 15 minute series) indicating the property's location.
- Sketch map for historic districts and properties having large acreage or numerous resources. Key all photographs to this map.
- Additional items: (Check with the SHPO, TPO, or FPO for any additional items.)

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

2/24/2015

DC Atlas Plus

<http://atlasplus.dcgis.dc.gov/>

1/1

Boundary map of 219 11th Street SE, Square 969, Lot 66

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Photographs

Submit clear and descriptive photographs. The size of each image must be 1600x1200 pixels (minimum), 3000x2000 preferred, at 300 ppi (pixels per inch) or larger. Key all photographs to the sketch map. Each photograph must be numbered and that number must correspond to the photograph number on the photo log. For simplicity, the name of the photographer, photo date, etc. may be listed once on the photograph log and doesn't need to be labeled on every photograph.

Photo Log

Name of Property: The Furies Collective, 219 11th Street Southeast, Washington, DC.
City or Vicinity: Washington
County: n.a. State: District of Columbia
Photographer: Patsy Lynch (additional historic photos courtesy of Joan E Biren and Ginny Berson)
Date Photographed: March 16, 2015

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Description of Photograph(s) and number, include description of view indicating direction of camera:

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 001
Front elevation of 219 11th Street SE, camera facing west. Entrance to 219B garden apartment to right below porch. Camera facing west.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 002.
Rear elevation of 219 11th Street SE, Washington, DC. First floor windows and door as well as porch and stairs are additions by current owners. Camera facing east.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 003.

Rear elevation of 219 11th Street SE, north inset providing basement access and light for windows of 2nd floor bedroom and 1st floor dining area. Camera facing east.

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 004.

Rear elevation of 219 11th Street SE showing second floor detail and chimney of building.
Camera facing east.

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 005.

First floor hallway of 219 11th Street SE from the front door looking through to the back wall of the kitchen. Camera facing west.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 006.

Living room of 291 11th Street SE looking through to dining area window overlooking inset of house.
Camera facing west.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 007.
Living room of 219 11th Street SE looking east toward porch and 11th Street. Camera facing east.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 008.
Dining area of 219 11th Street SE looking northeast towards living room wall.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 009
Second floor hallway of 219 11th Street SE. Camera facing west.

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 010.

Original tin ceiling of kitchen area of 219 11th Street SE. Camera facing west.

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 011.
Detail of living room pocket door at 219 11th Street SE. Camera facing west.

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 012.

Women's Skills Center at 1861 California Street NW, a project of Those Women, 1971

Washington, DC

County and State

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 013.

Those Women print project discussion, 1971 page 1

-1-

We thought the paper should come out every three weeks or every month. For it to come out more often would be more than a full time job.

We think we would need about 10-12 people to ~~help~~ set up the paper and put it out.

We thought it would be important for ^(lesbians) people outside of our collective as well as some people from our collective to work on the paper. We should all talk about how we can do that and make sure the paper still has the politics we want to express. From the experience that some of us had working in off our backs we ~~know~~ ^{know} we could end up with a paper whose politics are unclear or on too many different levels, which in fact means no clear politics at all.

Also if there is not some kind of ~~the~~ ^{understanding} on what politics the paper will have ^{with the people working on it} and if the people working on it do not have a very basic level of trust with each other and are not close politically a lot of ugly splits and hostilities can develop around what the paper should be. This of course would not be good for our reputation in this city - which is already questionable - he ha.

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 014.

Those Women print project discussion, 1971, page 2

Washington, DC
County and State

-2-

We thought the paper could speak mainly to old gay women and new lesbians, offering our views about many different things ~~and~~ which would mean of course our politics. To develop political consciousness. To give certain kinds of information. To encourage closet lesbians to come out-- offering lesbianism as a positive alternative not something weird to be ashamed of. Also we think the paper could reach some women (especially young women) who ~~are~~ ^{are not} yet lesbians, but have some amount of women's consciousness and may be considering lesbians. Although we would not concentrate ~~the~~ ^{the} paper on them.

Some of the things we want to include in the paper are: poetry; photographs; survival (for instance info. on motorcycles, apathy, running away, etc.); news page-- what gay women are doing around the country; ideological articles; including reprints; general articles about facts of lesbian oppression; listings of gay collectives, organizations, publications, services; articles about women's sexuality. Also we thought it might be nice to have some

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 015.

Washington, DC

County and State

Those Women print project discussion, 1971, page 3.

-3-

fictitious lesbian stories -- maybe trying to express some idea or make a point -- now and then written by Ginny and whoever else wanted to write something like that.

If we decide to do a paper the people working on it can look through a book which ~~shows~~ shows different ideas for size, folding, type of layout, etc. and decide more specifically what the visual image will be. We will have to use an offset press since they don't do typesetting around D.C.
Good luck on us finding a printer!

We have to talk about how we would distribute.

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 016.

Editorial and staff of the Lesbian/Feminist issue of motive, 1972.

editorial: MOTIVE COMES OUT!

Women are moving. We are moving out of passivity, out of the closets; we are moving toward control of our own lives and the overthrow of male supremacy. The aim of this magazine is to express this motion and to move you by sharing the ideas, experiences and feelings of many lesbians. Today, lesbian/feminist politics are taking shape; our analysis is crystallizing and we are starting on the path to effective action. Some of the women contributing to this magazine were "happy" heterosexual housewives not long ago. Some were homosexuals in hiding, either from their "friends" or their own self-hate. Starting from these different places, we have all become lesbian-feminists. Lesbian feminism is the ideology that unites us. It is the way of thinking that enables us to understand our past and chart our future. Only if we understand how and why we have been oppressed can we successfully fight for our freedom.

You are part of that past and in the belief that you will want to shape that future, we have put together a magazine of lesbian-feminist writing, art, and poetry. Some of the work here is reprinted but most was created especially for this issue.

Motive, a monthly magazine published by the United Methodist Church for over twenty years, is no more. This is its final issue. Throughout Motive's history, radical dissension within limits was tolerated with a few slaps on the wrist, but the church fathers really squirmed when the special issue on women appeared in March-April, 1969. In the aftermath of the controversy over the women's issue, the church began to reduce its support of Motive and Motive decided it could no longer function under the church. Motive could not survive without church money so the staff and editorial board decided to close up shop—using the remaining resources of the magazine to put out one final gay issue. The Furies, a collective of twelve lesbians in Washington, D.C., which included a member of the old Motive editorial board, assumed editorial responsibility for the lesbian issue. Within the collective, four of us took major responsibility for this project but everyone has contributed to it.

We are not professional publishers or editors. We are political lesbians who wanted to create a magazine that would communicate our ideas to you. It was exciting to have the resources for our own magazine. We were determined that from start to finish lesbians would do it all. A publication produced with men could not proclaim the strength and promote the independence of women in the way we hoped to.

In the process of putting this issue together we built bonds with lesbians around the country who sent in articles, graphics, and poetry in response to our requests. In order for lesbians to complete the entire production we gained many new skills. Lesbians from several cities produced the design and layout. The Sojourner Truth Press in Atlanta printed the whole issue. Where things were needed, we did them ourselves. Lesbians who could never write articles before wrote. Lesbians who never typeset before learned composing. Women who never published a magazine before did it.

We are proud that this issue was put out by women. Gay men have also produced their issue of Motive. Although originally scheduled as one gay issue, we made a political decision to do separate women's and men's issues. At this time, we are separatists who do not work with men, straight or gay, because men are not working to end male supremacy. Sexism oppresses men, especially gay men, by suppressing the 'female' in them and amputating their self-development. But all men still receive concrete benefits, privileges, and power from that system. Male supremacy subordinates women in every way. Ending gay oppression will not automatically end woman oppression. Only a complete destruction of the whole male supremacist system can free women. When men renounce the power and privilege they gain through the domination and subordination of women and join the struggle to end all male supremacy, they will be allies of the strong and independent lesbian-feminist movement we are building. Those men, straight or gay, who cling to male power and privilege continue to oppress us and stand in the way of a women's revolution.

We hope you will read the magazine, pass it on, talk about it with women you know and women you are getting to know, keep in touch with us and join the struggle.

Joan E. Biren
Rita Mae Brown
Charlotte Bunch
Coletta Reid

This issue was printed by Sojourner Truth Printing Collective, 432 Moreland Ave. N.E., Atlanta, Georgia 30307, an all women's press. Sojourner Truth wants to print newspapers, pamphlets, posters, and leaflets from women all across the country. In addition to printing this issue, they have printed the FURIES, "Sleeping Beauty", a lesbian fairy tale, posters, and lesbian stationery. Call 404-688-6222 to have your women's literature printed.

Layout and Graphics:
Ginger Legato
Selina Martin
Lee Schwing

Composition:
Helaine Harris
Tasha Petersen

Others who have helped:
Susan Baker
Ginny Berson
Sharon Deevey
Susan Hathaway

Marilyn Langfeld
Nancy Myron
Judy Winsett
Jennifer Woodul

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 017.

First Page of Volume 1 No 1 of The Furies, January 1972.

Washington, DC
County and State

the furies

January 1972

lesbian/feminist monthly

volume 1

The story of the Furies is the story of strong, powerful women, the "Angry Ones," the avengers of matricide, the protectors of women. Three Greek Goddesses, they were described (by men) as having snakes for hair, blood-shot eyes, and bats' wings; like lesbians today, they were cursed and feared. They were born when Heaven (the male symbol) was castrated by his son at the urging of Earth (the female symbol). The blood from the wound fell on Earth and fertilized her, and the Furies were born. Their names were Alecto (Never-cessing), Tisiphone (Avenger of Blood), and Megara (Grudge-er). Once extremely powerful, they represented the supremacy of women and the primacy of mother right.

Their most famous exploit (famous because in it they lost much of their power) involved Orestes in the last episode connected with the cycle of the Trojan War. Orestes, acting at the orders of the Sun God Apollo, killed his mother Clytemnestra, because she had killed his father. Clytemnestra had killed the father because he had sacrificed their daughter Iphigenia, in order to see favorable winds so his fleet could sail to Troy. The Furies, however, were angry. They literally drove his crazy, putting him under a spell where for days he could not eat or wash his blood-stained hands. He hit off his tunic to try to appease them, but it is no avail. Finally, in desperation, Orestes went before the court of Athens to plead his case.

The point at issue was whether matricide was justifiable to avenge your father's murder, or in other words, whether men or women were to dominate. Apollo defended Orestes and totally denied the importance of motherhood, claiming that women were no more than passive sports receptacles for men, and that the father was the only parent worthy of the name. One might have thought that Athena, Goddess of Wisdom, would have condemned Orestes, but Athena was the daughter of the male God, Zeus, sprung full-grown from his head, the first born woman. Athena decided for Orestes. Some mythologists say that Zeus, Athena, and Apollo had conspired from the beginning, or during Orestes to kill his mother in order to put an end, once and for all, to the religious belief that motherhood was more divine than fatherhood. In any case, that was the result.

The Furies were, of course, furious, and threatened to lay waste the city of Athens. But Athena had a direct line to Zeus, King of the Gods, who told the Furies to accept the new male-supremacist order or lose everything. Some of the Furies and their followers rebelled, the rest pursued Orestes until his death.

We call our paper The Furies because we are also angry. We are angry because we are oppressed by male supremacy. We have been faced over all our lives by a system which is based on the domination of men over women, which defines male as good and female as only as good as the man you are with. It is a system in which heterosexuality is rigidly enforced and lesbianism rigidly suppressed. It is a system which has further divided us by class, race, and nationality.

We are working to change this system which has kept us separate and powerless for so long. We are a collective of twelve lesbians living and working in Washington, D.C. We live rural and urban, from the southeast, Midwest, South and Northeast. Our ages range from 18 to 28. We are high school dropouts and Ph.D. candidates. We are lower class, middle and upper-middle class. We are white. Some of us have been lesbians for twelve years, others for ten months. We are committed to ending all oppressions by attacking their roots—male supremacy.

We believe The Furies will make important contributions to the growing movement to destroy sexism. As a collective, in addition to outside projects, we are spending much time building an ideology which is the basis for action. For too long, women in the Movement have fallen prey to the very male propaganda they seek to refute. They have rejected thought, building an ideology, and all intellectual activity as the realm of men, and tried to build a politics based only on feelings—the area traditionally left to women. The philosophy has been, "if it feels good, it's O.K. If not, forget it," but that is like saying that strength, which is a "male" characteristic, should be left to men, and women should embrace weakness. Most straight women, to say nothing of men, feel afraid or contemptuous of lesbians. That fear and contempt is similar to the feelings middle class whites have towards blacks or lower class people. These feelings are the result of our socialization and are hardly worth glorifying. This is not to say that feelings are irrelevant, only that they are derived from our experiences which is limited by our class, race, etc. Furthermore, feelings are too often used to excuse inaction and inability to change.

A political movement cannot advance without systematic thought and practical organization. The haphazard, non-strategic, zig-zag tactics of the straight women's movement, the male left, and many other so-called revolutionary groups have led only to frustration and dissolution. We do not want to make those same mistakes; our ideology forms the basis for developing long-range strategies and short-term tactics, projects, and actions.

The base of our ideological thought is: Sexism is the root of all other oppressions, and lesbian and women oppression will not end by smashing capitalism, racism, and imperialism. Lesbianism is not a matter of sexual preference, but rather one of political choice which every woman must make if she is to become woman-identified and thereby end male supremacy. Lesbians, as outcasts from every culture but their own have the most to gain by ending race, class, and national supremacy within their own ranks. Lesbians must get out of the straight women's movement and form their own movement in order to be taken seriously. To stop straight women from oppressing us, and to force straight women to feel with their own lesbianism. Lesbians cannot develop a common politics with women who do not accept lesbianism as a political issue.

In this (see page 8) and following issues of The Furies we will share our thoughts with you. We welcome your comments, letters, articles, fiction, poetry, news, graphics, and support. We want to build a movement in this country and in the world which can effectively stop the violent, sick, oppressive acts of male supremacy. We want to build a movement which makes all people free.

For the Chinese women whose feet were bound and crippled; for the tribes of Africa whose children were mutilated; for every woman who has ever been raped, physically, economically, psychologically; we take the name of the Furies, protectors of vengeance and protectors of women.

Gump Barson

ORESTES PURSUED BY FURIES

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 018

The Furies, volume 2, number 3. The final issue.

Washington, DC
County and State

Sea-Quench III By Jab

FINAL ISSUE

The present Furies staff has consisted of five people for seven months now. Since the last issue, one person from the staff has quit and two of us are moving to another city. These changes have occurred mainly because of changing priorities. The paper cannot continue with only two members, therefore we have decided to make this the last issue.

We are sorry that we are not able to fulfill our commitments to our readers. To in some way compensate this to our most recent subscribers, we will send you back issues.

The Furies Staff

STAFF
Debbie George, Helaine Harris
Lee Schwig, Lorette Ulmschneider

COVER
Photo by Jab

Copyright 1973 by THE FURIES, Inc.
No reprints without permission.

back issues: 50¢ a piece
$5.00 for complete set (10 copies)
c/o The Furies, Box 8843, S.E. Station,
Washington, D.C. 20003

Collection of articles from previous Furies
available in pamphlet form-

1). Women Remembered:
Collection of Short Biographies
of Women 7 articles

2). Class and Feminism:
Collection of Articles on Class
from in the Woman's Movement
7 articles

Available from Diana Press
12 W. 25th St. Balt., Md. 21218
$1.25 each

May-June 1973/The Furies 1

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 019

The Furies, layout table work at 219 11th St. SE, Washington DC. Left to right: Lee Schwing, Coletta Reid, Ginny Berson, Jennifer Woodul. Photo: Sharon Deevey.1971

The Furies Collective

Washington, DC
County and State

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 020

The Furies, packing and distributing the newspaper, at 219 11th Street SE, Washington, DC. Left to right: Ginny Berson, Susan Baker (not a Fury), Coletta Reid, Rita Mae Brown, Lee Schwing. Photo: JEB (Joan E. Biren). 1972

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 021

The Furies Collective costume party, 2900 18th Street NW. Standing: Rita Mae Brown, Sharon Deevey, Joan E. Biren, unknown, Marilyn Webb (not a Fury); middle row: Helaine Harris, Judy Winsett (not a Fury), unknown, Jennifer Woodul; front row: Coletta Reid, Lee Schwing, Tasha Peterson. Photo: Ginny Berson. 1971

Washington, DC
County and State

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 022

The Furies, preparing the newspaper for distribution. Left to right: Susan Hathaway and Sharon Deevey. Photo: Ginny Berson, March 1972.

Washington, DC
County and State

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 023

The Furies: Nancy Myron preparing issues for mailing, Photo: Ginny Berson, March 1972.

Washington, DC

County and State

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

Washington, DC

County and State

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 024

Collective meeting. Left to right, Rita Mae Brown, Lee Schwing, Coletta Reid, one person obscured, Charlotte Bunch, Jennifer Woodul. Photo: Ginny Berson. March 1972.

MAR
•
72

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 025

Joan E. Biren, Sharon Deevey, Helaine Harris. Photo: Ginny Berson, March 1972.

Washington, DC
County and State

The Furies Collective

Name of Property

DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 026

Furies Forum discussion at unknown location, Ginny Berson, center at table. Photo: JEB (Joan E Biren) 1972

Washington, DC

County and State

The Furies Collective
Name of Property
DC WASHINGTON FURIES COLLECTIVE 027
1972 FBI report on The Furies

Washington, DC
County and State

In Reply, Please Refer to File No.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
Washington, D. C. 20535
October 18, 1972

[REDACTED] b7c
On September 28, 1971, a representative of the Federal Bureau of Investigation observed two females, whose identities were unknown, arrive at approximately 2:20 p.m. at the Institute for Policy Studies (IPS), 1520 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C. (WDC). The two females later departed IPS driving a [REDACTED] b7c 05

Institute for Policy Studies (IPS) has been characterized in an article in the WDC weekly newspaper, "The Examiner" dated September 24, '67 page 22, by Edith Kermit Roosevelt. She states in part that IPS is a Washington based "Think Factory" which helped train extremists who incite violence in the U.S. cities, and whose educational research serves as a cover for intrigue and political agitation. Through its conferences and seminars, IPS exerts a continuing influence on the ideology and tactics of the new left.

During January, 1972, a group of women calling itself the Furies Collective published the first edition of the Furies, which they described as a new lesbian - feminist newspaper. A review of the initial issue of the Furies reflected that [REDACTED] b7c

During March and April, 1972, spot checks in the vicinity of 219 11th Street, S.E., WDC, the Furies Collective address, by a representative of the FBI reflected that a [REDACTED] b7c 05 was one of many vehicles parked at that address.

[REDACTED]

100 - 471712 4

ENCLOSURE

The Furies Collective
Name of Property

Washington, DC
County and State

Paperwork Reduction Act Statement: This information is being collected for applications to the National Register of Historic Places to nominate properties for listing or determine eligibility for listing, to list properties, and to amend existing listings. Response to this request is required to obtain a benefit in accordance with the National Historic Preservation Act, as amended (16 U.S.C.460 et seq.).

Estimated Burden Statement: Public reporting burden for this form is estimated to average 100 hours per response including time for reviewing instructions, gathering and maintaining data, and completing and reviewing the form. Direct comments regarding this burden estimate or any aspect of this form to the Office of Planning and Performance Management, U.S. Dept. of the Interior, 1849 C. Street, NW, Washington, DC.