Join the DC Historic Preservation Office for a public meeting focused on the preparation of the city's five year Historic Preservation Plan. This plan, last updated in 2007, outlines broad policies and specific goals for historic preservation activities in the District of Columbia.

The purpose of the meeting is to obtain public input on state of the preservation movement in the District of Columbia. Feedback and opinions are being sought on the following:

- ◆ How well are we taking care of our cultural resources?
- ◆ What are some of the successes and failures of preservation in the past five years?
- ◆ What conditions economic, financial, social, political are supporting or pre sending challenges to preservation?
- ◆ What are the strengths and weaknesses of DC's preservation programs and partners?

For further information, including a first draft of the plan and the 2007-2012 plan, please see the HPO website www.preservation.dc.gov
